How an Old Woman Won a Prize.

Many years ago a prominent merchant in Taunton promised an eccentric old woman, named Lucy King, living in the neighboring town of Berkeley, a prize, if, taking her subject from the Bible, she would compose a riddle which he could not guess. She won the prize with the following:

Adam God made out of dust,
But thought it best to make me first;
So I was made before the man,
To answer God's most holy plan.

My body God did make complete,
But without arms, or legs, or feet.
My ways and acts he did control,
But to my body gave no soul.

A living being I became,
And Adam gave to me my name;
I from his presence then withdrew,
And more of Adam never knew.

I did my Maker's law obey,
Nor from it ever went astray;
Thousands of miles I go in fear,
But seldom on the earth appear.

For purpose wise, which God did see,
He put a living soul in me,
A soul from me my God did claim,
And took from me that soul again.

For when from me the soul had fled,
I was the same as when first made;
And without hands, or feet, or soul,
I traveled on from pole to pole.

I labor hard by day and night,
To fallen man I give great light;
Thousands of people, young and old,
Will by my death great light behold.

No right nor wrong can I conceive,
The Scriptures I can not believe;
Although my name therein is found,
They are to me an empty sound.

No fear of death doth trouble me,
Real happiness I never shall see;
To heaven I shall never go,
Or to the grave, or hell below.

Now when these lines you slowly read,
Go search your Bible with all speed;
For that my name's recorded there,
I honestly to you declare.

Switzer.

Born.—February 16th, to C. C. Gregory and wife, a son.

Misses Lula Jones and Bettie Lyon are visiting friends in Louisville.

Mr. P. C. Smith and wife paid a visit to their mother, at Payne's Depot, last Sunday.

The high waters have subsided and our streams present their natural appearance again.

Mrs. Malvina Jones has been quite ill for several days, but at this writing is much better.

Misses B. Hockensmith and Emma Stone, of Frankfort, are visiting at Mrs. Pony South's this week.

Mr. James Hendrickson and wife have been quite feeble this winter. They are the oldest citizens of this village or neighborhood.

Mr. Thomas Jones went to Louisville with his tobacco this week. Mr. Jones has the boss crop of the neighborhood and we hope that he realized a good price for it.

Mrs. Sytha Saery and her two daughters will start for Illinois in a few days, where her two sons have been for some time past. They intend making Illinois their future home.

We are glad to know that some one likes to hear from Once a Week often. We promise you that in the future we will try and be more worthy of the name than we have been in the past.

We gladly welcome the correspondent from Monterey to our ranks, and hope that he or she may each week appear with a nice newsy letter, like those that have been published in the past.

Moving, moving. Every day some one is moving. E. R. Jones has rented and moved to J. H. Switzer's residence at this place. Mr. Robert Taylor has moved to the residence recently vacated by him.

Mr. C. M. Cook and Miss Fannie Thurman, of Oxford, have been visiting friends in this neighborhood this week. Mr. Cook's visits to this neighborhood are becoming quite frequent, and from present indications he is very much interested in a charming belle of this neighborhood.

We are truly sorry to hear of the quiet little town of Monterey being thrown into such wild excitement over the non-appearance of a certain young gentleman from Forks of Elkhorn. As a word of consolation to the bereaved ones, we would say that the young man is still in the land of the living, and as soon as old honest Dick (the name of the animal that he rides) can make the trip over the mud roads that have to be traveled from his home to Monterey he will be forthcoming.

Of the many socials that we have tried to describe to the readers of the ROUNDABOUT during the winter, there has been none to equal the one given on last Thursday night by Mrs. Julia Suter and Mrs. Eliza Hockensmith, at the residence of the former, in honor, of Miss Annie Branham, of Missouri. At an early hour the house was filled with invited guests of both young and old, numbering in all about sixty persons. About seven o'clock they were invited to the dining room where one of the finest suppers had been prepared and spread before them that hungry beings ever partook of. After all had been fed it seemed that there was plenty for as many more. We can heartily congratulate Miss Branham on the success of her social, for all alike seemed to enjoy the splendid supper and the entertainment of the evening, generally speaking. Many seasons of pleasure will come and go before the one given in honor of Miss Branham will be forgotten by those who were in attendance.

FRANKFORT, KY., Feb. 27th, 1883.

Editor Roundabout:

Knowing that your columns are ever open to items that tend to inform the community of matters of interest to all, I ask space to present to your readers a short mention of an entertainment partaking of both the intellectual and enjoyable qualities. Last Friday evening was the appointed occasion for the celebration of Longfellow's birthday by the Society of Alpine Climbers at Excelsior Collegiate Institute, situated about five miles from this city, of which Mrs. Endora L. Smith is Principal.

At an early hour the large hall was filled with the people from a circuit of fifteen or twenty miles, anxious to satisfy themselves with the rare delicacies prepared for them. They had not long to wait, for soon the overture greeted their ears as the keys of the piano responded to the touch of Miss Mattie Sea, and her teacher, Miss Lee Hawkins, and proved the qualification of the teacher and aptness of the pupil.

After prayer a sweet chorus of "Rainy Day" was rendered by the entire Society, then Miss Rachel Gaines came forward and delivered an original recitation, entitled "Living or Dead?" in a self-possessed and deliberate manner that would have done credit to one far her senior in years. Again Miss Mattie Sea delighted the audience with an instrumental solo, then followed an instrumental duet by Misses Katie Thomas and Maggie Quinn that was well received by the audience. At the close of which Miss Mattie Crutcher appeared as "Elizabeth," and commanded the undivided attention of all to the close of a composition marked with pen pictures and rubrics of thought. Next "Evangeline" was ushered in by a vocal quartette composed of Misses Lily Stone and Katie Thomas and Messrs. Woodson Bailey and Lat. Crutcher. The blending of Miss Lily's air and Miss Katie's alto was delightful and seemed not to need the addition of Wood and Lat. to complete the harmony, nevertheless their voices completed the fullness. The Reading Club then gave an "Evening Talk" replete with spicy points. Misses Nellie Grady and Lily Stone next rendered an instrumental duet calculated to waken the sleepy and cheer the attentive. Mr. Hiram Jett, by his recitation of "Wanted, a Ministers Wife" satisfied the community that no preacher, no matter how attractive or intelligent, need apply in this matrimonial market. Again instrumental music relieved the audience followed by a vocal duet by Misses Katie Thomas and Lily Stone, when "the Murrenring Sea" rippled to the echo of their charming voices. In this as in all other vocal pieces, the careful and painstaking instruction of Miss Thomas was patent to even a novice.

Mrs. E. L. Smith followed with a "Paraphrase of David's Lament over Saul and Jonathan," which she delivered in her usual clear and impressive tone. Miss Katie Thomas then performed an instrumental solo that convinced her audience that her fingers had not been neglected while her voice was charming hearers.

Elder J. W. McGarvey then attracted the attention for a half hour to his address, "Poetry of the Bible." His thorough investigation of the beauties of holy writ and his accomplished manner of presenting his thoughts excited the admiration of believers and unbelievers alike. The evening's festivities closed with the rendition of "Good Night."
